University of Minnesota Extension serves every county in Minnesota, providing University resources and expertise to address community issues.

More than 1 million Minnesotans participate in Extension programs such as 4-H, financial education, health education, and community economics.

U of M’s Research and Outreach Centers support research, outreach, and hands-on education programs for farmers, producers, and community members, including animal science, agronomy, horticulture, renewable energy, forestry, and wildlife management.